

The Lot presents:

“Frog Mountain in a Neo Country”

The Lot, 3013 Cochrane,
North Corktown, Detroit, MI, USA

Saturday, August 8
6-9pm

Davin Brainard's work spreads across the genres of painting, sculpture, noise music, performance, and video. His images include clouds, tanks, and unicorns, and possess a magically mischievous quality. Brainard is a core member of the collective Time Stereo and is the gallery director of Detroit's UFO Factory. He performs in the noise band project Princess Dragonmom, which brings unicorns and swords across the globe. In this exhibition, Brainard gives us 1,000 FROGS.

Chris Kerr is a painter and sculptor in Chicago, IL and is the originator of the art movement Neo Country: “exploring the connection between illiteracy and text based art.” His work rotates between immediate drawings/paintings and intricate sculptural scenes that include snowy ski-lift backdrops, forests, and strip-clubs. Kerr teaches at Columbia College in Chicago and the Ox-Bow School of Art and Artist Residencies in Saugatuck, MI. In this exhibition, Kerr brings us his selection of Detroit icons in the form of lawn games.
